

Comparative Sample H is only about 1×10^6 Pa at 150°C. These results indicate that the excellent thermal properties of the invention are not due merely to the presence of aromatic groups in the alkoxyated Mannich base.