

Innovations in Medicine

The mechanisms and technologies highlighted in the pages of this report underscore the innovative scientific basis for Titan's diversified portfolio of therapeutic products in development. Titan's products represent novel approaches to providing new and better solutions to treating serious diseases. In addition to the product development programs described herein, Titan is conducting research in a number of other areas to explore potential new applications for its technologies.

Titan's strong development pipeline coupled with its strategic partnerships with multinational pharmaceutical companies and alliances with government-sponsored clinical groups enable Titan to potentially offer significant advances in CNS and cancer therapeutics.